WHO ARE SSSK?

SSSK was set up by two students, Johnny Glennie and Ben Phillips at Cambridge and Oxford, based on their direct experience of working with street connected children in Colombia and India. They realised the most important contributions people in the UK can make are to support local organisations working to meet local needs, and to raise awareness about – and try to change - the systems which perpetuate poverty and exclusion and force children to live or work on the streets.

HOW CAN I GET INVOLVED?

There are SSSK branches in Cambridge, Edinburgh, London, Oxford and Warwick. They help to raise funds for the NGOs we support and raise awareness about street children. They also promote visiting and volunteering. Get in contact to find out more:

WHAT DO WE DO?

We are a small and flexible charity run entirely by volunteers. We promote a positive view of the potential of street-connected children, rather than presenting them as victims. We work with other NGOs as a member of the Consortium for Street Children.

HOW DO WE WORK?

We support a brilliant portfolio of NGOs around the world, all of which have been visited by students or trustees. 100% of the money raised by our branches and from individual donations goes to the NGOs we support. The trustees cover all SSSK administration costs.
